ONE YEAR CONIFEROUS SEEDLINGS

It will pay you to bed out one year seedlings. Not only on account of the low initial cost of planting stock and the ease of planting, but largely because of the finer root and top development formed during the following two seasons in the transplant beds. Such stock, 1 yr. - 2 yr., i. e., three yrs. old will have made a better growth than the average 2 yr. - 2 yr. or four yr. transplant originally set out as a 2 year seedlings. We advise bedding out in four ft. wide beds, one inch apart, in rows 3-4 in. apart. Shade with lath frames. During winter, to prevent heaving, mulch with light covering of straw, laying lath over covering. Do not remove mulch until late in the spring.

Not less than 100 of a variety sold. 500 at 100 rate
